Physician Notes:

Daniel visited with complaints of intermittent heartburn, especially after evening meals. He denies weight loss, vomiting, or blood in stool. Physical exam was normal and no red flag symptoms were observed. Based on the pattern, the diagnosis is gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD). He was prescribed Omeprazole 20mg to be taken once daily before breakfast for two weeks and advised to avoid late-night eating, caffeine, and spicy foods. Patient was educated on elevating the head during sleep and maintaining a healthy weight. Follow-up was recommended if symptoms persist or worsen despite treatment.
